Hoosiers at risk of property fraud

Attorney General wants Hoosiers to be on alert

INDIANAPOLIS (WISH) - Indiana's attorney general says Hoosiers are at risk for property fraud theft.

Attorney General Greg Zoeller said this is a crime that's happening around the country and it's starting to happen in Indiana. Zoeller said the title to your home can be stolen right out from under you.

He said these criminals are exploiting a loophole to steal money from lenders.

Allen County Recorder John McCauley said, "This works remarkably easily. This is a process in which documents are easily prepared, easily obtained in an office depot, or downloaded off the web or even just prepared by hand. Information is transferred very easily, public information."

McCauley said right now only a small number of the crimes are happening in Indiana.

If you think you are at risk please call your county recorder office.
